

House in Dordogne

Several years ago we bought an old house in the Bastide village of Beaumont, in the Dordogne region of France. We then more recently built a new cottage on the edge of the same village. We have now (sadly in my view) sold the old house and no longer rent out the new house. However, when we are not using the house ourselves we are very happy for friends and family to do so (you can always make a donation to a charity of your choice) There is a dedicated website for the house in France at www.houseindordogne.com
